A clear change that takes place in this chapter was Edmund and the mood is creepy.

Edmund went to the witches castle and there was stone statues which reminds me of media and the castle looked like you would get killed in cause the dark ness reminds me of evil.

The white witch was yelling at Edmund because he did not bring his siblings to her so the witch yelled and it is scary for some one you don't know of some one that's trying to kidnap your siblings to you at you.

A change was Edmund, it was Edmund because he switched on his sisters and he only did that because he wanted to be prince of kings and he wanted more tuff'n delight.

Edmund changed because he left his coat behind the beaver's house and it was running out of daylight so now he is thinking bad about his siblings.

Edmund does not believe him when he talks about Aslan the King of Narnia so he drew mustaches and tentacles on the statue.

Edmund is having a nasty attitude when he is around of with his siblings.

Other things changed like for example he was at the beaver's house now was at the witches house and now was at the woods all alone.

Edmund has become a much nastier person. Edmund has been trying to bring them to the Queen because he wanted his siblings to become stone. Edmund has been thinking worse about his siblings and joining forces with the Queen. Edmund thinks better about the Queen, more and more. Edmund has turned his back on all of his siblings and the good people he has ever known. He is beginning to almost "hate" Peter for what he did. The Queen has changed because she has become disrespectful towards Edmund and yelling at him for not bringing his siblings when he was supposed to bring them to the Witch with him.

The changes in this chapter changed the mood. ^{to nervous to scared} One change was the setting. First Edmund was in the beaver's house, then the woods, and in the White Witch's castle. That gave me a nervous mood because when Edmund was at the White Witch's castle, Edmund found a stone lion and that gave me a nervous mood because at the end of the chapter the White Witch got angry at him for not bringing his siblings and I don't know if the White Witch is going to turn him into stone. When Edmund was at the beaver's house it was day light, then when he left to go to the White Witch it turned dark. That gave me a scared mood because right when Edmund went to the White Witch's house it turned into like a evil setting.

The mood of this chapter changes to eerie everytime Edmund is more of a betrayal to his siblings. Edmund snuck from the Beavers house to the Witches. He thought he would have choice, freedom, and happiness there. But the second he saw it he was frightened, but his ungrateful side took the best of him. There were statues of real life people and things, that use to be alive but were caught by the queen. Edmund said he forgot to bring his sibling, but this was obviously staged. He didn't like the thought of his sibling running with him, so he blew them off. He was yelled at for breaking his promise, the queen did not seem merciful at the moment. After the queens change, Edmund is having second thoughts about teaming up with her.
