

Name: Sumaya A

Patriot Protests

Focus Question: Why were Colonists' protest tactics ^{impact & reactions} ~~effective?~~

Successful

Boycotts: Why were Colonists' boycotts effective?

- The boycotts were effective because they GUB lost a lot of $.
- Boycott was effective because the B.N blocked American ports.

Petitions: Why were Colonists' petitions and letters effective?

- They were effective because it helped the King with Act.
- It was effective because many colonists joined

Stop and Jot: Why were Colonists' protest tactics effective?

- They delayed the Stamp act
- People were scared to support British
- Many colonists joined the Patriot Rebellion on SA
- _____
- _____

Additional notes from discussion:

MI:

$\frac{TS}{D}$

Focus Question: Why were the Colonists' protest tactics effective?

SA

The Colonists' protest tactics were effective because they scared British supporters into "helping Patriots."

The Colonists' protest tactics were effective because the British supporters were quitting to help the British, from fear. In the text it says "when confronted by a determined mob, royal officers saw the personal danger they face when helping British law... by the day the Stamp Act was supposed to go to effect, all the stamp collectors had resigned."

This shows that the Colonists' protest tactics were effective because they intimidated the British tax collectors to stop and they delayed the Stamp Act.

This shows how the Colonists' protests were effective, because their protest tactics scared British supporters and helped them stop the Stamp Act.

Name: Anthony [redacted]

Patriot Protests

impacts/reactions

Focus Question: Why were Colonists' protest tactics effective?
successful

Boycotts: Why were Colonists' boycotts effective?

- ~~By making the British lose money~~ By making the British lose money
- By trying to stop taxes.

Petitions: Why were Colonists' petitions and letters effective?

- By getting what they wanted (stop ~~to~~ a tax)
- By showing others that it isn't fair

Stop and Jot: Why were Colonists' protest tactics effective?

- So they can show the colonists that they wanted rights
- ~~It~~ It made stamp collectors resign from the job
- Made an act rejected b/c of Angry mobs/riots
- _____
- _____

Additional notes from discussion:

~~_____~~

Anthony

Focus Question: Why were the Colonists' protest tactics effective?

The Colonists protest tactics were effected because ~~#~~ the tarring and feathering made the British scared. In the section "Tarring and Feathering" Meg Chorlian says, "After a few instances of this form of punishment became known just the treat of being tarred and feathered often got the desired results." This piece of evidence states that the colonists got the British scared of being tarred and feathered. On the section "Mob Violence" the colonists made the British scared enough to quit their jobs. The mobs were threatening the British to stop the Acts so they can get what they want by stopping the taxes. On the section "Mob violence" Meg Chorlian says, "all the appointed stamp collectors in the colonies had resigned." This piece of evidence shows that the colonies and colonists made the British afraid by ~~the~~ the colonists threatening them. That's how the tactics were affective in different ways.

Name: Bella [REDACTED]

Patriot Protests

Impacts / Reactions

Focus Question: Why were Colonists' protest tactics effective?

Boycotts: Why were Colonists' boycotts effective?

- They pressured the British to make them repeal the taxes

Petitions: Why were Colonists' petitions and letters effective?

- They want to make the King accept their point

Stop and Jot: Why were Colonists' protest tactics effective?

- _____
- _____
- _____
- _____
- _____

Additional notes from discussion:

- Tax collectors were scared of the angry mob, they quit their jobs, no more stamp act
- Punished British supporters to scare them off

Bella S.

Focus Question: Why were the Colonists' protest tactics effective?

Colonists protest tactics

The ^A were effective because the Colonists created mobs and they punished British supporters. A piece of evidence is, "Just the threat of being tarred and feathered often got the desired results." This shows that the British were afraid of the Colonist because they were punishing them. They put pressure on the British to repeal the taxes.

Name: Qynter

Patriot Protests

Focus Question: Why were Colonists' protest tactics effective?

Boycotts: Why were Colonists' boycotts effective?

- because british were taking the money
- british also block import goods in north america

Petitions: Why were Colonists' petitions and letters effective?

- they were effect by letters to the king
- they were also effective petition attacks

Stop and Jot: Why were Colonists' protest tactics effective?

- colonist were effective by refusing to cooperate
- the protest tactics effect the colonist address it on 17th
-
-
-

Additional notes from discussion:

Focus Question: Why were the Colonists' protest tactics effective?

Why the Colonist Protest tactics effective to British was they planned really well to get taxes out
White British did not all about this and the British got out before planned of the colonies taking the taxes away from Britain and wanted everyone to move away & want more money except more being given to the also boycott the British to also was a plan

Name: Clinton

Patriot Protests

Impact / Reaction

Focus Question: Why were Colonists' protest tactics effective?
successful.

Boycotts: Why were Colonists' boycotts effective?

- The boycotts were effective because they
- helps try to stop the acts and stop the taxes.

Petitions: Why were Colonists' petitions and letters effective?

- They were ending up being effective
- because I think the townshend act helped.

Stop and Jot: Why were Colonists' protest tactics effective?

- "taxation without representation was unfair."
- "sent olive Branch . . . tax issues."
- Quit their jobs because they are scared (c)
- AJC evidence proves how the used tactics
- _____

Additional notes from discussion:

Focus Question: Why were the Colonists' protest tactics effective?

The colonists' protest tactics were effective because they made the British lose money ^{which} was important to them. In the text it said, "Great Britain lost due to boycotts was greater than the amount of money the government might have collected through taxes." To me this evidence proves a tactic that helped them.

This evidence also proves that they worked so hard that they made the British lose a lot of money. Another way that tactics were important were because they made the British quit their jobs. In the text it says, "After angry mobs threatened them personally or ransacked and destroyed their homes and businesses, some stamp collectors felt lucky to escape with their lives." This evidence proves that the British were scared. This evidence also proves that if they don't collect taxes, the Polnist wouldn't have to pay taxes. This is why the tactics were effective.

Name: Isaac

Patriot Protests

Focus Question: Why were Colonists' protest tactics effective?

How was it effective?
What tactics?

Boycotts: Why were Colonists' boycotts effective?

- These boycotts were effective because it showed
- the British why they did not like it when they couldn't import goods and move through ports from place to place to get money.

Petitions: Why were Colonists' petitions and letters effective?

- These letters and petitions were effective because
- it gave some people sense and insight about how different people know the information and want the Acts to stop too.

Stop and Jot: Why were Colonists' protest tactics effective?

- Because it stopped people from being free when they weren't
- struck their self-sufficiency.
- Hanging around certain things so they won't get as scared
-
-

Additional notes from discussion:

Isaac

Focus Question: Why were the Colonists' protest tactics effective?

boycott

The Colonists tactics were effective because it helped make the British be scared. This meant that whatever Colonists did to try to stop the Stamp Act or Sugar Act can get people to help them confront officials or people that can write letters or petitions to stop them.

It states on page "15" on paragraph 1 "It became a widely-pamphlet to point out unconstitutional Acts the Townshend had, this means that all the ideas or conclusions the Colonists had that were not necessary or perhaps unconstitutional maybe officials or different people could put that aside to get the best ideas that can work to shut down those unfair acts. However, even though British parliament still mistreated the Bystanding Colonists they were not able to get the money they wanted and the Colonists were able to declare Independence against them to stop the Stamp Act as well as the Sugar Act. Colonists were able to buy goods and travel where they needed to get items that will sustain their lives.

Name:

Deborah

Patriot Protests

impact/Reactions

Focus Question: Why were Colonists' protest tactics effective?

Boycotts: Why were Colonists' boycotts effective?

- They were effective because trade revenue was decreasing
- _____

Petitions: Why were Colonists' petitions and letters effective?

- They were effective because their claims were widely read
- _____

Stop and Jot: Why were Colonists' protest tactics effective?

- Tarring and Feathering people
- Mob violence/Intimidation
- Hanging (an effigy) was effective, made
- people intimidating, had people lose jobs
- _____

Additional notes from discussion:

Evidence

Pg 14 P1: The amount of trade... through taxes

Pg 15 P1:

Focus Question: Why were the Colonists' protest tactics effective?

The colonists protest tactics are effective, because when Britain got it, they were intimidated, and started doing what benefits for the colonists. One of the protest tactics the colonists had was intimidation, which was very effective. A piece of evidence to support this is "large angry crowds of people were intimidated and effective." This shows that when they scared people it was very effective. Another one of the colonists tactics was hanging effigies on people who supported Britain's oppressive acts. A piece of evidence to support this is "Boston residents met to hang in effigy the Boston merchant Andrew Oliver who had been appointed royal stamp distributor. He resigned his post." This proves it was so effective people quit jobs because of the fear from the colonists.

TS: D, C, E, C'

Name: Meggan [redacted]

Patriot Protests

Focus Question: Why were Colonists' protest tactics effective?

↳ what did they do

↳ impact reactions
↳ success full

Boycotts: Why were Colonists' boycotts effective?

- because British lost money
- Colonist became self-s

Petitions: Why were Colonists' petitions and letters effective?

- because it spread the word
- It made negotiations with King

Stop and Jot: Why were Colonists' protest tactics effective?

- Because taring and feathering
- Mob violence made people scared
- Hanging one effigy was effective b/c made people scared and "resigned his post" so he was scared.
-

Additional notes from discussion:

Meghan Jeannot

Focus Question: Why were the Colonists' protest tactics effective?

The colonists protests were effective because it helped stop taxes and acts that they thought were unfair. In the text it shows us that the colonist tared and feathered people, had angry mobs, hangings and petitions. They intimidated and persuaded the British. First they made deals with the king and when that didn't work they took it to the next level. They treated people and hurt them in many ways. Like taring and feathering or hanging them. Sometimes they even took it as far as raiding their homes. But all of this worked out because at the end a lot of people "resigned" from their jobs as stamp collectors.

Name: Isabella [redacted]

Patriot Protests

Focus Question: Why were Colonists' protest tactics

effective? ^{Impact} ^{Reactions}
Successful

Boycotts: Why were Colonists' boycotts effective?

- Made it harder to import goods
- Lost a lot of trade revenue.

Petitions: Why were Colonists' petitions and letters effective?

- The Acts were passed.
- _____

Stop and Jot: Why were Colonists' protest tactics effective?

- To many moby to be controlled
- _____
- _____
- _____
- _____

Additional notes from discussion:

Focus Question: Why were the Colonists' protest tactics effective?

~~Isabella~~ bella

The Colonists' protest tactics effective because Great Britain lost a lot of trade revenue against the colonists. Also they were effective because of the Tarring and Feathering that was happening, so the British officials didn't want that to happen to them and quit their jobs. The stamp collectors resigned from their jobs and when that happened no colonists were able to get taxes.

Name: Joshua [redacted]

Patriot Protests

impact / reactions

Focus Question: Why were Colonists' protest tactics effective? successful

Boycotts: Why were Colonists' boycotts effective?

- They were effective because they didn't want the British to gain money.
- They also did this so that they can make the British open their ports again.

Petitions: Why were Colonists' petitions and letters effective?

- They were effective because there wanting more people to know about it so they can get rid of it.

Stop and Jot: Why were Colonists' protest tactics effective?

- They were effective ~~because~~ because they used mobs so they won't be controlled over the King George.
-
-

Additional notes from discussion:

Scanned Q: if there jobs - colonists
NO taxes NO stamp act - colonists

Focus Question: Why were the Colonists' protest tactics effective?

The ~~Colonists~~ ^{effective} colonists Protest tactics were ~~effective~~ because they tried protesting for ~~petitions~~ and Tarring and feathering. Boycotts

The ~~Colonists~~ colonists were boycotting because they didn't want to keep on getting taxed by the British. In the text it quotes "The amount of trade revenue that Great Britain lost due to boycotts was greater than the ~~government~~ ^{government} collected through taxes." This was bad for ~~great~~ Great Britain lost all there money they were taxing the colonists because they were boycotting. This ~~was~~ was effective because they had money while Great Britain lost all there money.

Name: Edgar

Patriot Protests

Impact/Reactions

Focus Question: Why were Colonists' protest tactics effective?

Successful

Boycotts: Why were Colonists' boycotts effective?

- They made the British lose money
-

Petitions: Why were Colonists' petitions and letters effective?

- If everyone signs or then it would be 1000 vs 1
- If you read a letter than you will understand the point.

Stop and Jot: Why were Colonists' protest tactics effective?

- They were effective because they had made
- the stamp collectors resign
-
-
-

Additional notes from discussion:

Fear Colonists

Edgar

Focus Question: Why were the Colonists' protest tactics effective?

The colonists protest tactics were effective because the British stamp collectors got scared of the colonists. This can be proven because in the text it says, "The amount of trade revenue lost due to the boycotts..." this evidence proves that the British lost so much money that it was greater than collected tax money. Also this was effective because the less money the less stamp collectors they can hire.

Name: Kerwenstey

Patriot Protests

Focus Question: Why were Colonists' protest tactics effective?

Boycotts: Why were Colonists' boycotts effective?

- They cost the British money
- _____

Petitions: Why were Colonists' petitions and letters effective?

- Colonists protest tactics are effective
- because they will understand the text

Stop and Jot: Why were Colonists' protest tactics effective?

- The colonists protest intimidated pro-British supporters
- The colonist protest intimidated tax collectors in colonies
- The colonist protest effected peoples homes and budgets
- The colonist protest effected people who supported British taxation
- _____

Additional notes from discussion:

Verwenstey Paul

Focus Question: Why were the Colonists' protest tactics effective? ^{were}

Colonists' protest tactics effective because the colonists protest intimidated pro-British supporters. In the passage it says "... show their intense dislike for any person who supported... oppressive acts." This evidence proves that they do not like any supporters of British. Another is the colonists protest affected people homes and businesses. In the article it says "... angry mobs threatened them personally ... and destroyed their homes and businesses." This

Name: Treon Eligiah

Patriot Protests

→ Impact/reactions

Focus Question: Why were Colonists' protest tactics effective?

Boycotts: Why were Colonists' boycotts effective?

British

- They were effective because they cost people money
- The boycotts effected goods from being transferred.

Petitions: Why were Colonists' petitions and letters effective?

- They were effective because they spread the message
- They were effective because they got K.G. to negotiate tax

(The acts were unfair)

Thinking about it.

ISSUES

Stop and Jot: Why were Colonists' protest tactics effective?

- The colonist protest intimidated pro-British supporters.
- The colonist protest intimidated tax collectors in colonies.
- The colonist protest effected peoples homes and buisnesses.
- The colonist protest effected people who supported B's offensive acts.

Additional notes from discussion:

Treon Eligiah

Focus Question: Why were the Colonists' protest tactics effective?

Jeon

① The colonist protest were effective because they caused the message of "unfair acts" to get passed around and caused members loyal to the king to negotiate trade and tax issues.

② The colonist violent protest caused british to live un-safe and it effected peoples businesses. when the message got spread, Great Britain was losing money. This effected british lives.

③ The colonist protest effected the lives of anyone that supported british. The violent protest were only used to intimidate anyone who took part in the oppressive british acts. On page 3 it says "some stamp collectors felt lucky to escape with their lives". This was after colonist broke their house and threatened them, which shows that they are not safe. This effected stamp collectors safety.

Name: David

Patriot Protests

impact/reactions

Focus Question: Why were Colonists' protest tactics effective?

So successful

Boycotts: Why were Colonists' boycotts effective?

- The boycotts were effective because the Britain lost
- money

Petitions: Why were Colonists' petitions and letters effective?

- It spread the word to other people
- It rejected the coercive Acts.

Stop and Jot: Why were Colonists' protest tactics effective?

- They used it to intimidate the British
- the British lost money
-
-
-

Additional notes from discussion:

Focus Question: Why were the Colonists' protest tactics effective?

The colonists protest tactics were effective because the colonists were intimidating the British. The text said that the colonists used tarring and feathering to intimidate the British for them to quit their jobs. Another piece of evidence is when the colonists used boycotts the British lost money because the colonists were not paying the taxes. One tactic that the colonists used was that they were making large angry crowds to make sure that the British were intimidated. That stuff is effective because the colonists were making the British were scared of them for them not to tax them. They got the desired results by tarring and feathering the British.

Name: Miya

Patriot Protests

impacted/reactions

Focus Question: Why were Colonists' protest tactics effective?

Successful

Boycotts: Why were Colonists' boycotts effective?

- Maybe they were effective by the relationship.

Petitions: Why were Colonists' petitions and letters effective?

- So they can all be apart of the trade for the colonists and the way the revolution works for them.

Stop and Jot: Why were Colonists' protest tactics effective?

- They made British lose money
- They internationalized the British locals
-
-
-

Additional notes from discussion:

They don't like having that job

Focus Question: Why were the Colonists' protest tactics effective?

Colonist's Protest tactics effective because the colonists were all upset. The British not want to work at that job they wanted to quit. But they still working at the job and if they stoped collecting, they would have no taxes to be given and they would probably be not even paying the taxes. Because it would not be taken and given to the government. and I'm pretty sure that they will still be trying to see if people, even though, there is no more collecting that they will still be paying taxes.

Name: Janalys G.

Patriot Protests

Impacts/reactions

Focus Question: Why were Colonists' protest tactics effective?

Successful

Boycotts: Why were Colonists' boycotts effective?

- Because all the fighting made the British do something.
- Also because they made the British lose money.

Petitions: Why were Colonists' petitions and letters effective?

- So it can convince the other colonists faster.
- So it can get more colonists to get on the British more.

Stop and Jot: Why were Colonists' protest tactics effective?

- Made British lose money
- Intimidated the British locals
- Colonists convinced other colonists to sign against the British
- _____
- _____

Additional notes from discussion:

Jared Gonzalez

Focus Question: Why were the Colonists' protest tactics effective?

The protests were effective because they made the British lose money.

Another way the protests were effective was that it made the British lose money with all the boycotts that the colonists were starting made the British lose a lot of money.

"The amount of trade revenue that Great Britain lost due to boycotts was greater than the amount of money the government might have collected through taxes." which proves that the colonists boycotts affected the British by making them lose money. which was an effective protest.